What's Your Style?

Traditional

Timeless, formal lines and amenities deliver a classic style known as traditional. This style follows the architecture of the home and creates comfort from a formal setting. It is warm, elegant, and inviting. Traditional design also features fine details, elaborate mouldings, custom built corbels, hand fitted doors and drawers as well as hand glazed finishes.

Transitional

Transitional style is a marriage of traditional and contemporary styles, finishes, materials, and hardware. The cabinet lines are simple yet sophisticated, featuring either straight lines or soft rounded profiles. This clean, streamlined look feels like home in the middle of a busy lifestyle. It features flat panel doors, full overlay cabinets, and sleek hardware.

How to Choose the Right Details For Your Design

Beaded Inset

An old world, classic type of styling typically used with traditional or French country designs. This type of inset uses time tested mortise and tenon joinery with an integrated beaded frame around each opening. Both door and drawer heads are hand fit and numbered to match the cabinet opening for which they were made, ensuring just the right fit. Available with either a concealed hinge or exposed barrel hinge.

Flush Inset

Flush inset is often used in shaker style designs or with an intent to create more of a lineal or transitional look. It also uses mortise and tenon joinery, but with a non-beaded frame that has a square edge. Both door and drawer heads are hand fit and numbered to match the cabinet opening for which they were made, ensuring just the right fit. Available with either a concealed hinge or exposed barrel hinge.

Full Overlay

Commonly used with contemporary and modern styled designs. This clean look is accomplished by using doors and drawer heads that almost completely overlay the cabinet face, creating a continuous and sleek feel.
